Nov 16, 2010 When I choose DX9 on the directx version, it tells me I need a better graphics card. If this is a known bug, please help. Here's the directx version: Run resident evil 5 directx9 version download pc Jan 5, 2012 If I don't install GFWL, DX9 version and play online, it will ask to download FEH (from some streaming website) and ask me to install it. But it doesn't. Also when I try to play online it says, find a GFWL update (7.10.70.00) already installed and that's why I couldn't play online. Jan 19, 2012 I also have GFWL installed and for some reason (it might be because of that?) the game was giving me error saying that GFWL is not allowed to run. Jan 20, 2012 GFWL crashed RE5 with message "Can't install file" I was able to run the game with GFWL disabled and online still enabled. Jan 21, 2012 I had to adjust the video settings in the game because I couldn't hear a thing without the sound turned on. When I turned the sound off it worked just fine. How can I run Resident Evil 5 completely offline (no GFWL version installed). Here's a list of things I tried in the same order: Disable GFWL Disable Online Game sharing (this is just in case, not sure if it even does anything) No graphics card at all Disable DX9 I even tried removing the file directly from the game folder and replacing it with the original, thinking that might get it running again, but no such luck. A: The problem is that you're using an old version of Windows. DirectX 9.0c is required for RE5. I'm running RC1 and I can confirm that my card is DirectX 9.0c compatible. DirectX 9.0c is not backwards compatible with older versions of the OS, and the game will crash if you try and run it using it. The default game mode for the game is DirectX 9.0c. Do you have any other DirectX 9.0c compatible video cards lying around? You may find yourself in the same situation. If you do, you could probably find a secondhand copy which has 1cb139a0ed
