The Scottish National Health Service has been criticised for the excessive amount of money it spends on healthcare and for its inability to contain costs. This article analyses charges for hip replacement surgery in Scotland in relation to the rest of Europe. Reported charges for the most common hip operation in the Scottish region of Tayside are compared to charges in the more comparable Nordic countries and in other European countries, with emphasis on Sweden, Finland and Denmark. The Scottish charges are found to be more than twice as high as the Swedish costs and double the
